also to expand the horizon by discussing several other Indian intellectual thinkers irrespective of their ideological base.

Prof. P.S. Yadapadithaya, Vice Chancellor, Mangalore University inaugurated the 'Multi ways of Imagining India' by delivering the inaugural address and commended the organizers for aptly choosing Mahatma Gandhi as the principal thinker. Rev. Dr. Praveen Martis SJ, the Principal of the College, welcomed the collaboration between the College and Nehru Study Centre. He highlighted Mahatma's life as inspiring people then and now during covid 19 times. Dr. Rose Veera D'Souza, Dean of Arts Faculty & HOD of Political Science formally introduced Prof. Vinay Lal through a rich, yet short, CV.

While delivering the talk on "Gandhi and the Ethics of Nursing: A Pedagogy of Care in Times of Corona virus" Prof. Vinay Lal walked the participants through Mahatma Gandhi's understanding and practice of 'nursing' from Gandhi's childhood days to the time spent in South Africa later in India. He focused his talk on two questions: how Gandhi would react to the present Pandemic and how does one think of non-violence during this time. Gandhi believed in self-reliance in the context of nursing rather than on modern medicines and treatment while not denying to others. Apart from mother, Putlibai Gandhi, he was greatly influenced by Florence Nightingale on nursing. His practice of 'ahimsa' and 'satyagraha' found him catering to the wounded or sickened during the Second Boer War and Zulu Rebellion through the establishment of Natal Indian Ambulance Corps, pneumonic plague (Johannesburg) etc. Gandhi's work in Johannesburg was an important phase, says Lal.

He worked through the affected without any protective gear/PPE. He was critical of the 'third party' in his Hind Swaraj wherein he says a doctor comes between the patient and one's own physical being. For Gandhi it was nursing oneself and others.

Gandhi went through a transformation in 1906 wherein he vowed chastity as care of children was inconsistent with public work. While Gandhi would have stressed on self-reliance, there is no saying that the present circumstances would demand some form of state intervention while self-responsibility, self-discipline and restraint were the need of the hour at the individual level. Prof. Lal argued that Gandhi had deep suspicion of the state. State intervention in corona virus times has been utilized to suppress dissent in many parts of the world. The current talk was based on his recent book that will be published by Pan Macmillan this year: The Fury of Covid-19: The Passions, Journeys, and Unrequited Love of the Coronavirus.

The Q&A session saw very interesting questions on nursing and feminism, Gandhi's ideas on modern medicine, missionaries, state intervention and authoritarianism, passive resistance etc. Melnitha Correa, BA student delivered the vote of thanks.

enormous amount of information and his personal experiences to share.

The webinar began with a soulful prayer by the Jesuit Brothers followed by a warm welcome to the speaker and the participants by Rev. Fr. Alphonse Fernandes SJ, Superior, Ashakiran. The opening remarks of the webinar was made by Rev. Fr. Dr Praveen Martis SJ, Principal, St Aloysius College (Autonomous), Mangalore. A very thought provoking message was made by the Principal where he spoke about the woes of the migrants which has been there always and was heightened during the Lockdown during COVID 19 and how St Aloysius College has come forward in performing their social responsibility in these trying times.

The speaker, Rev. Fr. Martin opened his talk stating "Migrant woes 'greatest manmade tragedy' in India since Partition" which is one of the most highlighted quotes in recent times by the famous historian Ramachandra Guha. He presented a completely new perspective to the migrant situation by comparing their plight with two historical events: firstly with the disturbing images of mass migration during the partition of India in 1947 and secondly, the exodus experiences of the people of Israel from the slavery in Egypt (Biblical reference).

He went on to stress that in contemporary India decades of rural distress has led to forced migration among landless agricultural labourers and marginal farmers. However, he pointed towards the fact that urban India did not really care for these migrant labourers till the COVID 19 lockdown was announced and the services of these migrants were not available. And to add to it there was complete failure and lack of preparedness by the government during that time. However, despite the struggle and hardships, these migrant labourers preferred taking all kinds of risk and trouble to get back to their villages and hometowns. This was basically their means of survival in their workplace was no longer available and the only way they could survive was getting back to their homes where somehow they could manage to live. Amidst all of this there was a ray of hope because when the government failed these poor and help-less migrant labourers the common man played a major role. Various NGOs, Civil Society, Educational Institutions, Students etc. came forward to help.

Rev Fr Martin had four suggestions to give in order to improve the erstwhile troubled situation of these migrant workers: accepting them as fellow citizens; protection of their rights; including them in unorganised workers' social security boards; and providing them with basic services and entitlements. The talk concluded with the reference to the Constitution of India [Art.19] (1) (d) and (e) which states, "all citizens shall have the right ... to move freely throughout the territory of India; to reside and settle in any part of the territory of India". However, this is possible only when everyone ensures that migrants get justice and only then will they be ever able to lead a dignified human life throughout the country.

The last part of the webinar, an interactive session, was moderated by Ms Joan Rita O'Brien, HoD, Department of Sociology, St Aloysius College (Autonomous), Mangalore. The speaker took questions from participants across the country and answered each of them with his expertise and experience over the years and ended on a very positive and optimistic note that Indians have the never to give up spirit and that what has kept us all going during the difficult times of COVID 19.

The webinar was moderated by Bro. Dapulu Dukru and the vote of thanks was delivered by Bro. Joseph Maxwell Jeevakan.

incident and the escalation of tensions between India and China took place at a time when the world was grappling with the pandemic covid-19. Dr. Avinash Godbole, Assistant Professor at School of Liberal Arts and Humanities, Jindal Global University (Sonapat) addressed the students on the above theme. Analysing the party cadres, centralization of power at the Polit bureau and its implications to political system in China Dr. Godbole laid the background of emergence of Covid-19 in Wuhan and the manner in which China as a surveillance state controlled the pandemic to bring normalcy, particularly to its economy by April 2020. He linked the pandemic to the current vortex in India-China relations by focusing on the following perspectives: 1) The self-perception of China towards criticism from the global public and its imagery of 'world all-out against China' particularly after the Covid-19 spread from the epicenter of Wuhan especially from the US. 2) The need to go on war footing to contain the pandemic so as to restart its economic that is largely 60% export-oriented and therefore pose as a goodwill ambassador in foreign countries. It's restarting of the economy was further possible given the then policy vacuum across the globe, paralysis in Europe, inability of the US to enforce the new normal amongst its people, etc.

Dr Godbole maintained that Beijing's behaviour as in the Galwan crisis is like any other aggressive behavior that the former has displayed with countries across the East China Sea and the South China Sea or Taiwan. This emanated strongly from its perception of being victim of world politics.

Galwan looks like an exception during Covid-19 times as this has erupted as a crisis that has stalled the India-China relations. This signals a major break in relations as all the procedures broke down with China attempting to change infrastructure and patrol points, with attempts to reach higher points in Ladakh. Galwan appeared so far as a symptom of border management wherein India and China may not have anticipated causalities. China has an attitude of state which wants to establish transactional economic relations be it with India or others, applying pressure on countries like India by playing with small countries within the neighborhood. Since the Doklam standoff of 2017, relations between India and China have remained symbolic and have not made much headway as suggested by the outcomes of the Wuhan Summit between Prime Minister Narendra Modi and President Xi Jinping. He argued that China has hardly shown any interest in pursuing any long-term engagement with any Indian corporate units and have concentrated only on training their nationals.

Dr. Godbole answered several questions largely coming from the students and the faculty on QUAD, WTO, India-US relations, rising powers, etc. The session was moderated by Dr Rose Veera D'Souza the Dean of Faculty of Arts and HOD, Dept. of Political Science. The entire program was coordinated by the Asst. Prof. of the Dept. of Political Science—Dr Joyce Sabina Lobo (Convenor), Mr Alwin D'Souza and Ms Maria Shaila D'Souza, Ms Shaila D Souza delivered the vote of thanks.

Success and satisfaction of a work can also be defined by how our work benefits our neighborhood and society. One such way of experiencing it is through Social entrepreneurship. Social entrepreneurship prompts and brings the essence to drive social change which has everlasting transformational benefit to the society as a whole. It is a golden mixture of Commerce and highlighting social concern.

Keeping in mind the quintessence of Social entrepreneurship and the very purpose of our college, Entrepreneurship cell has created an online market for our local and rural entrepreneurs by bringing together the Producers and Consumers in and around Mangaluru through our Noble project ALOYSIUS JAALASANTHE. This has created a Win-Win situation for both producers as well as the consumers wherein the producers get an opportunity to market their home-grown and homemade products such as pickles, papad, extracting honey, vegetables etc., and on the other side the consumers are availing the best quality local products in a convenient E- Shopping format. The Pandemic COVID 19 has damaged the market and many Entrepreneurs have lost their livelihood. This forum makes a sincere effort to create a market by bringing Producers and Consumers together to create a self-reliant society. Our students are part of this project through which they are getting entrepreneurship ideas and skills.
